ABOUT THE WINE

A rosé that doesn't try to be anything other than refreshing, but gets the volcanic finish thrown in. Pale salmon, clear red berries, and a mineral pull at the end that empties the glass faster than planned.

THE CRAFT

How it is made

The road from grape to bottle, step by step, as the winery itself describes it.

- | | | | |
|---|---|---|--|
| 1 | GRAPE
Listán Negro, picked by hand from the vineyards nearest the coast. | 3 | FERMENTATION
Temperature-controlled in stainless steel. |
| 2 | PRESSING
Direct pressing, with no skin contact. It is the way the juice is drawn off that gives the pale salmon colour and the soft, almost absent tannins. | 4 | MATURING
It stays in steel, to keep the freshness and the red fruit. No oak. |

WHAT SETS IT APART

Direct pressing, with no skin contact. Both the colour and the light structure come from how the juice is drawn off, not from time on the skins.

THE WINERY BEHIND THE WINE

Precision. Malvasía and Listán Negro from the vineyards nearest the coast, where the Atlantic sits in the wine as a mineral, almost salted undertone. The wines are paler and leaner than most, and they do something few others on the island do: sparkling by the traditional method, with long ageing on the lees.
